DIFFICULT ART OF PICNIC CATERING REDUCED TO A SCIENCE.

The Summer Girl Needs to Take Especial Care of Her Beauty-Gowns to Wear-Girls Who Cannot Spell.

"Picnics are more trouble than they are worth, every time!" was the strongly-expressed sentiment of an older sister recently, who has several small brothers to cater to in the cooking and the lunchpacking, as well as in the general supervision necessary on such occasions, says a writer in the Philadelphia Press. But even when the disadvantages of catering to numerous small boys is not taken into consideration, there is much to be said against as well as for the picnic idea as it is usually carried out. There are many suggestions, however, that may add to the pleasure of the outing parties.

According to the opinion of a certain matron, who has wide experience in picnicking, the greatest drawback to the pleasures of a basket picnic is the basket. It takes work-hours of work-over a hot stove to fill it in what is generally considered a proper manner. It is heavy to carry and in the way from first to last; never out of hand or mind until deposited on the kitchen table after the return home. One or two families who were very fond a day in this way, and whose excursions of necessity were mostly by rail, and involved a walk from the station to some suitable place, found after many experiments that the dreadful baskets could litthe amount of provisions necessary to satisfy the keen appetites of a dozen or more persons spending the day in the fresh air. The first improvement was to substitute pasteboard boxes for baskets. After din-

The spoons, knives and forks were rolled secured in a bookstrap, making a comparatively small, light package, easily carried. the dozen cost only a trifle. The dishes for holding the various articles of food and for serving it from, on the table, were the invention of the "old maid" of the party, and met with universal favor from all who saw them. They were made of thick, white paper and cardboard. Experience also proved that substantial food and relishes were preferable to sweets, very little cake answering for a large party. Nicely prepared sandwiches were always acceptable; ham, tongue, salmon and cheese can be used for them. The meats can be bought already prepared in small tin cans, and are both very nice and inexpensive. The salmon must have all the bones and skin removed, the flesh minced very fine and mixed with a little vinegar. For the cheese sandwiches, round butter crackers are used: they are split and the grated cheese placed between the haives. Each kind of sandwiches should have a box to itself or it will certainly flavor all it comes in contact with. Hard-boiled eggs prepared in this way are very appetizing. Bake thoroughly in a brisk oven. Saratoga potatoes make a nice relish. They can be served very conveniently in the small paper dishes, placing a dish beside each plate. If prepared in the following manner they will be nice and crisp; peel and slice raw potatoes as thin as possible, and let the slices stand awhile in cold water. Then dry them and drop into a kettle of boiling fat, a few at a time. Take out with a skimmer when browned and crisp, and sprinkle them with salt.

A little touch of color is pretty on the black swiss gowns, around the collar band and possibly he yoke. A pretty way to accomplish this by using gathered frills of blue velvet baby ribbon, three or five rows around the neck, with a few rows encircling the yoke below the band. Again the upper sleeve is of lace, beginning just above the elbow, where the lower sleeve folds over with a finish of rows of black velvet ribbon or a frill of very narrow lace. Light gray is a very popular color for the organdie or silk muslin gown, and it is usually made up over gray and trimmed with white lace. A little color at Muslin gowns are not the only division in summer dress which is expensive, for the pique, duck and linen suits carry a goodly amount of extravagance in their train. They must be up to date in every sense, tailor-made, if possible, or they will not pass muster, and as it is necessary to have them immaculately fresh at all times, the laundry bills add unlimited sums to the original price. White lawn or silk shirt waists are most generally worn with the pique coat and skirt, but colored silk waists with the white pique are very popular, as much worn, and with this the pale pink and blue shirt waists are very pretty.

To Remove Fruit Stains.

New York Tribune. With the frequent service of fruits, the table linen is apt to suffer. Before sending to the laundry the tablecloths and napkins should be carefully examined and the spots removed, as soap sets the stains. When the pot has become thoroughly heated the water should be poured off and in its place should be put one teaspoonful of tea to each half pint of water to be used. Add water that has reached the boiling point and set the teapot on the back of the stove for five minutes.

"There is a fact," said a dressmaker, "that is a good point to bring out; half my orders include detachable guimpes. Six out of every ten bodices I make with an evening bodice and then build up two or three guimpes to go with it. For instance, look at this black gown," she said, "it is of crepe de chine, the silkiest, softest weave. The bodice is made so it can be worn in the evening without sleeves and neck. The decollete line of this bodice is always finished with that end in view. For less formal dinners and for afternoon driving this summer guimpe and sleeves will be of transparent jet. Then another guimpe is to be made for it of fine black lace over black chiffon, not transparent. A woman who puts her money into a gown like this has a variety to play upon." The trying yellow spots so often left by sewing machine oil on white goods may be removed by rubbing the stain with a cloth wet with ammonia before washing with

Girls Poorly Qualified.

Chicago Post. "Will you kindly tell me," said a business man who hires scores of typewriter women in the course of the year, "what the public schools teach their pupils? I have had ten girls here to-day in response to a request I sent this morning to the typewriter agency, and not one of them can spell, nor have they the slightest idea of punctuation. That is the simple truth. They have no more idea of either of these essentials than has the veriest child. And yet every one of them says she has passed the grammar grades-the whole of the common school, you understand. Three of them said they were high school girls. Two had graduated from high school and had their diplomas with them. But they didn't know how to spelling, and they have punctuated in the to operate the machine in a way, and some But they can't spell, and they don't seem to tuation?" THE BICYCLE REPAIR MAN. Near a Big City He Finds Plenty of

Work on Sunday.

New York Commercial Advertiser. Sunday is the busy day for the bicycle repairer in the suburban districts. rises early, rushes to his little shed of a shop and has not long to wait for some unlucky eycler to come to him for a punctured tire, a broken handle bar, or a bent crank. Then, at this season of the year, many persons rush in of a Sunday morning with their wheel covered with dirt and rust of a long winter, and want it thoroughly overhauled at once, that they may take ad-vantage of the good weather for their first ride of the season. These procrastinators, or opportunists, are generally disappointed; for the bicycle man has the important air which comes from being more in demand than in supply, and busily answers that he cannot possibly attend to the winterrusted wheel before the next day.

The church bells ring, but the bicycle man heads them not, except to think that now his busiest hours of work are coming. One cannot be a bicycle repair man and be as religious as one would like. At noon a hurried luncheon, often eaten with grimy fingers in the workshop, amid the pathetic dismembered wheels of those who went forth gladsomely in the morning, only to fall before a tack or a small suburban special purpose. Wet the stain with the solution, and hold over hot water or in the sun. The instant the spot disappears rinse well. Wet the stain with ammonia, then rinse again. This will many times save linen.

Javelle water is excellent for white goods, and may be made at home or purchased at the druggists. A good rule for making it calls for four pounds of washing soda, dissolved in four quarts of soft water. Boil ten minutes, take from the fire and add one Wonderful Mill End Selling of
